Autecology: Autecology, the study of the interactions of an individual organism or a single species with the living and nonliving factors of its environment. Autecology is primarily experimental and deals with easily measured variables such as light, humidity, and available nutrients in an effort to u

Autecology - Wikipedia

Autecology is an approach in ecology that seeks to explain the distribution and abundance of species by studying interactions of individual organisms with their environments.

Autecology - Ecology - Oxford Bibliographies

Introduction. Ecology's central question is the distribution and abundance of organisms. To this end, autecology quantifies the survival and reproductive consequences of the interactions of individual organisms with their immediate environment, as mediated by their species-specific adaptations.
