Computer-supported cooperative work - Wikipedia
The term computer-supported cooperative work (CSCW) was first coined by Irene Greif and Paul M. Cashman in 1984, at a workshop attended by individuals interested in using technology to support people in their work. At about this same time, in 1987 Dr. Charles Findley presented the concept of Collaborative Learning-Work.

Computer Supported Cooperative Work - A Framework

We take the phrase "computer supported cooperative work" and pull it apart – first, looking at cooperation, then at cooperative work and finally at various forms of computer support. This sort of dissection is not really a particularly valid form of analysis. CSCW obviously has a meaning over and above the particular words of which it is composed. My only excuse is that it is useful and draws Computer-Supported Cooperative Work and Social Computing
